

Teacher Support Request

I've found a resource that can help me and my students with accelerated learning and learning recovery. It's a self-paced program that will strengthen my ability to provide more individual instruction to each of my students during my normal class periods. The program offers graduate credit, is evidence-based and qualifies for ESSER learning recovery funds. I would like to request funding to take the following online courses:

Flipped Learning 3.0 Level-I: This online self-paced course was developed to help teachers spend less time teaching from the front of the classroom and more time working with students individually. You'll get the basic knowledge required to successfully implement the flipped classroom model. Educators who complete the online program will return to their classrooms prepared to take the first steps required to teach a class of students with widely different academic and social-emotional needs. The Flipped Learning 3.0 Level-I and Level-II certifications are internationally recognized and university accredited in 30 countries.

Flipped Learning 3.0 Level-II: This self-paced online course was created to help you make the most of class time, face-to-face or virtually. You will learn how to confidently move your classroom beyond entry-level Flipped Learning strategies, as you explore next practices in active learning. You'll leave this course with the classroom management skills required to begin using the advanced differentiation strategies required for learning recovery. FLGI Flipped Learning 3.0 Level-I and Level-II certifications are internationally recognized and university accredited in 30 countries.

Flipped Learning 3.0 Differentiation Specialist: This course was created to help with one of the biggest challenges teachers face: How to give the right instruction at the right time, to every student in a class of 20, 30, or more? You will learn why differentiation is so hard, why most teachers fail to differentiate instruction, and how to differentiate successfully with proven strategies made possible through Flipped Learning. You'll complete this master class with the confidence to differentiate in classes of various student sizes, and diverse academic competencies. You'll also receive the Flipped Learning 3.0 Differentiation Specialist Certification to add to your professional resume.

Mastery Based Learning Specialist: This course will help you set up your class for students to learn at their own pace. The course includes planning for self-paced learning and managing a self-paced classroom. The course includes a section on how to set up formative and summative assessment in a self-paced classroom. In this short course you will get a step-by-step plan to get you ready to implement and manage a mastery/competency-based classroom.

Learning Recovery Specialist Level-I and Level-II: This program is for school administrators who want one of your staff members to become a Certified Learning Recovery Specialist, supporting your school, multiple schools, or a school district. The program includes all four basic courses above plus a facilitator/coaching course. This course includes a 12-step guide to effectively helping other faculty provide more individualized instruction, make the best use of class time, and manage a self-paced classroom.
